
Pacman

Well it looks likes he is a Cowboy now and I seriously doubt that Jerry would have made the trade if he wasn't certain that Pacman would be reinstated. I think it is a good move as long as there are outs in the contract allowing the Cowboys to cut him without penalty if he has anymore off the field trouble.

The funniest part to me is all the people saying "JJ is tarnishing the star" and getting on their high horse. I'll bet these same people cheered Michael Irvin and Terrell Owens on their TD catches. And while Pacman is most definitely an idiot, I'm glad that there are perfect people out there that have never messed up and needed a second chance and feel that Pacman shouldn't get one either.

I think it's worth the risk. He knows that if he F's up, just one more time....HE'S BANNED FOREVER. Oh, he may do that...but at least he's been warned.

He very well may do that.....but he is a good talent and (just as you have stated) we can be free of him if things go sour.

He is a good player, no doubt. With him and Newman at the corners...wow. Maybe the best tandem in the league? His off the field excitement has overshadowed how good a corner he had become. Roy Williams will find life much easier.
