
2008 Season Recap

Posted by CMJ - 2008/04/02 23:15

I'm planning on getting started next week. It'll likely be in at least 3 sections(nonconference, conference pt 1 &2). Might go four parts depending on how lengthy they are. Hopefully they'll be done in about a month.

After that is done, I'm gonna try and get the wikipedia project started that I mentioned on GMG about 4-5 days ago. I'm hoping some of the old timers like Buford can help me out.

Looking forward to it.

Also, if you need webspace on the wiki, I have a wiki extension that can simply be put on this site. Let me know.

Got it.

Everyone it is uploaded and on the front page. CMJ does this for free.99 so give it a look please.

So far it is a great recap of the season. :)

Thanks, I found a couple of typos that I edited just a minute ago. Hopefully it reads well!

Don't worry.....life is busy with everybody here too. We are considering a house soon, so it is exciting yet time consuming.

I'll try to have the next section up by the end of the holiday weekend. I had meant to get to it today, but time sorta got away from me.

If you notice any problems with Part 3(or any of them really) - lemme know and I'll go ahead and fix them.

I know it's taken me a bit longer this year, but I'll have the last part with some thoughts on our season and a look ahead pretty soon.

Not that there's that much really going on till August anyways. :laugh:

I saw you had already edited part 3 - looks like better spacing. Thanks for all you do on these. Content like this makes this small corner of the web have a bit more to read.

Okay Part 4 has been sent in....take a look and see if you notice any problems with it.

I'm looking forward to the Olympics most of all(the only every 4 year thing gives it precedence over every thing else), but after that - can't wait for college sports to start back up. Even with my love of baseball, this is the doldrums of the sporting calendar.

I agree - Summer can get slow. At least the Rangers are entertaining and are giving me a glimmer of hope for the future.

I notice your font size is bigger for this past article - lets keep it that way. Much easier to read.

Not sure why one of my sentences showed up so darkly. How peculiar.
