
Point Guard

What does everyone think of the point guard situation? I am concerned with Brown gone. Lets hope Ben Bell is worth something. Many have mentioned that Sturns coming back helps, but I am worried about using him there. I think he is a scorer - built to be a 2 guard. If he can handle the pressures of playing point and make everyone better, than he can fit the bill. Otherwise I fear a breakdown in play due to being thin at the point.

I haven't seen Bell play, but he will be the starter by default. I do know that Sturns (as you said) and Mangrum are not natural point guards. Davis might be the long term solution if something went wrong with Bell. Where's Lance Boxell when you need him?

I really hope Davis doesn't have to play time at the point. His good attributes wouldn't be utilized there.
