
Shanice\'s signees are racking up some awards

Posted by SUMG - 2009/05/13 14:39

Impressive:

http://www.meangreensports.com/ViewArticle.dbml?DB_OEM_ID=1800&ATCLID=3737588

=====

Re:Shanice\'s signees are racking up some awards

Posted by Buford_Julep - 2009/05/14 07:10

There is a chance NT could have a very good team next season. It may take awhile before they get used to playing with each other. Also, there are many that are used to being big-time players on their former teams that will have to adjust to having smaller roles. I am very optimistic in the long run, but I would not be surprised by an early or mid-season slump and maybe even a few players quitting or being suspended.

=====

Re:Shanice\'s signees are racking up some awards

Posted by daReporta - 2009/05/14 09:12

I'm sure SS will be working on chemistry beginning in August when the ladies begin summer session. If they buy into the system (which most have - just by news reports), it will be a family environment conducive to growth. It is obvious that these young ladies are winners and winners generally put team first and are not concerned with individual goals. It is always a concern when you put big names together - how the team will meld, but I think UCONN proved that great players achieve great things and it is the team that wins, not one player.

I agree - SS is no nonsense. Any foreseeable trouble (in my opinion) would be "freshman freedom", but Godboldt is from the immediate area... Cuffie was at a prep (boarding) school... Hughes, Hudson, Burwell & Kellum know about "campus life"... and Taylor, Hawkins, and Thompson obviously love SS and the staff, based on news reports.

SS has raised the standard. Jump on board - it may be a bumpy ride but she is going to have this team ranked before this freshman class graduates... I can feel it! Conditioning, dedication & desire to win will not be an issue with this incoming class either.

And to address any "quitting", I don't see any of the new recruits throwing their hands up - if anyone is ready to quit - it will be the recruits from the previous staff.

=====