
Collin Mangrum

Posted by CMJ - 2010/04/06 15:16

For all that he went thru with injuries, and yet came back everytime....he will be missed. I really hope he feels it was all worth it. One of my favorite players ever. Wish he could have had a proper send off.

=====

Re:Collin Mangrum

Posted by GrandGreen - 2010/04/06 22:41

I hate to see him go, however everyone knows we need more lawyers. I do think that his game was really improving and that he would have been a very positive factor next year. Thompson, Williams, Shorter, and McGhee should be enough at the wing particularly with Johnson and White also getting time there.

I am not filled with as much glee as many who assume he is going to be replaced by a better, younger player.

=====

Re:Collin Mangrum

Posted by CMJ - 2010/04/06 23:18

I'm not either. Kid was tough as nails. It would've been very easy for him to throw up his hands and walk away with his misfortune on the injury front, but he never did. A real classy kid, and I hope nothing but the best for him.

The only positive I see in his departure is our Senior class won't be quite as large, and maybe we can start getting some kids on board now before we HAVE to next year.

=====

Re:Collin Mangrum

Posted by SUMG - 2010/04/07 08:19

Probably 3 of our best break away dunks this year....were on steals and dunks by Collin. He's a darn good athlete.

Good luck to him....he's a good kid.

=====